Hi Miriah!

Yes, an assessment of Cook Inlet subsistence consumption is being conducted by Seldovia Village Tribe in the villages of Seldovia, Port Graham, Nanwalek, and Tyonek. Fish and shellfish consumption are included in the assessment. This was an FY12 IGAP Special Project, and they are still working on data analysis and the draft report.

Hello Katharine,

My name is Miriah, and I work for the Department of Environmental Conservation. In past conversations with Violet Yeaton, she conveyed to me Port Graham, and Nanwalek, I believe are conducting some fish (and perhaps shellfish?) consumption surveys...I assumed this was IGAP funded, but I could be wrong. Violet is out of the office for several weeks, so I thought I'd check with you to see if you knew any more about this.

Have you heard anything about AK tribes conducting consumption surveys?

Thank you in advance for your time, and any info any can provide.

Miriah D. Twitchell
